FROM THE PRESIDENT

Terry Reed

VOTE VOTE VOTE

We are now in February. That means it is election time. You should have received your Ballots and some of you have probably already returned them. The deadline is fast approaching. Be sure to have them back to Elections chair Diane Krupski BY February 15.

On another note you will find a write up from Rob Grabow, producer of the movie "Year of the Dog." This is a movie filmed mostly in Montana and includes some IWPA members and their dogs. Rob has also offered a free screening of the movie at the Championships. We will work on finding time for that to happen.

That is all I have for this month. The season is winding down and it will be time for Championships before you know it!

Terry Reed

BOARD NOMINATIONS

Hello IWPA Members,

I am Jean Wilson from Region 6. I've been involved with weight pulling since January 2010. I truly love this sport and the teamwork it has helped me build with my dogs. Even more so, I treasure the friendships I've made along the way and the level of positive sportsmanship I see with this organization. I've always seen the IWPA as a growing entity with new members not only coming on board, but engaging by becoming judges and organizing events. I'd like to work for you again to further the IWPA in growth and represent you, the members. I'd like to have the opportunity to be your voice. I've been a judge with the IWPA for a number of years and have previously served for you on the board. I have always had an "open door" policy and encourage members to text, email or call me if they have a suggestion, concern, or just have something they'd like to discuss. If I'm not immediately available, I make it a point to connect as soon as I can, typically in less than a day. I'd be honored if I were allowed to represent you again and ask for your vote in the upcoming election.

Jean Wilson

Hello to all IWPA Members,

My name is Marlo Wacker, I am from Region 9 out of Colorado. I've been involved with weight pulling since 2014, when my daughter started as a cart handler and then started to pull her dog. I love this sport and the opportunities to travel and make new friends, which I will treasure. There is so much positivity in this organization and I truly would like to see this continue and grow with the younger generation. I would like you to consider me for the board, so that I can represent you as a member and let your voices be heard.

Thank you for your time and consideration,

Marlo Wacker

970-371-7536 cell

Hi , I am Mary Anne Felice from Colorado Region 9. Proud mommy of Galyith, Caesar, Hope and many others. I have been a member since 2003. For the 2022-2023 season I have had the pleasure of being on the board as the championship chair. Besides being a board member this year and pulling our dogs, I have hosted one championship and organized a few pulls. I would be honored to be elected to serve another year as an IWPA Board Member. As a board member I hope to help with membership growth and keeping the fun family atmosphere we have all grown to love.

Thank You

Mary Anne

Indy Feature, The Year of the Dog, Spotlights Dog Weight Pulling Darwin Lumbattis Butte, MT IWPA Member, Cast in Supporting Role

Bozeman, Montana: The award-winning, independent feature film, The Year of the Dog, which opens in over 100 theatres nationwide on February 24, a historical release and a milestone for Indy films in the post-Covid film era, features Butte, Montana IWPA Member and Army Veteran, Darwin Lumbattis, in a supporting role and brings the sport of weight pulling to the big screen.

Lumbattis not only served as the onset consultant supervising the weight pull scenes, but also used his connections in the weight pulling community to get experienced pullers and their dogs to participate in the movie.

They came from all over the country, including IWPA member Jean Wilson, who traveled over 1,500 miles from Michigan with her two Newfoundlands Brody and Rocky. IWPA member Brittany Speakman and her dog Luna, and fellow Butte weight puller Tina King, her grandson Michael, and her two dogs, Sasha and Chloe, can also be seen as extras in the film. Tina's Siberian, Chloe, also work as pull double for the film's lead-actor dog, Caleb. Lumbattis was especially proud to have two of his powerhouse dogs, Scout and Tank, in the film.

While weight pulling is not the focus of the film, Rob Grabow, the film's writer, producer, co-director, and lead actor is not a weight puller. Growing up in Alaska and attending his first weight pulling event at 11 years old in North Pole, the sport has had enough of an impact on Grabow that he wanted to make a film about it. Grabow also knew he needed expert input for the film's crucial weight pulling scenes. He did some research and reached out to the International Weight Pull Association, which referred him to Lumbattis, who's dog Scout holds the IWPA artificial snow weight pull record for a dog in the 80-pound class. Lumbattis will host the 2023 IWPA International Championship in Butte, Montana at the end of April.

The film, a poignant story about two strays, Matt, an alcoholic struggling to maintain sobriety and Yup'ik, a rescue dog with an unusual athletic gift, takes audiences on a heartwarming journey of forgiveness, finding purpose, making connections, and ultimately healing. Lumbattis, who retired after 16 years in the army, including active-duty combat in Iraq as a Cavalry Scout in 1991 & 1992, before settling in Butte for good in 2010. Lumbattis later became active in the IWPA and understands a lot about healing. He loves working with dogs and finds it gives him purpose, while also helping him process traumatic experiences during his service. Says Lumbattis, "My dogs, Scout and Baby, are my kids. I love them more than anything. They're always right there and they love you no matter what."

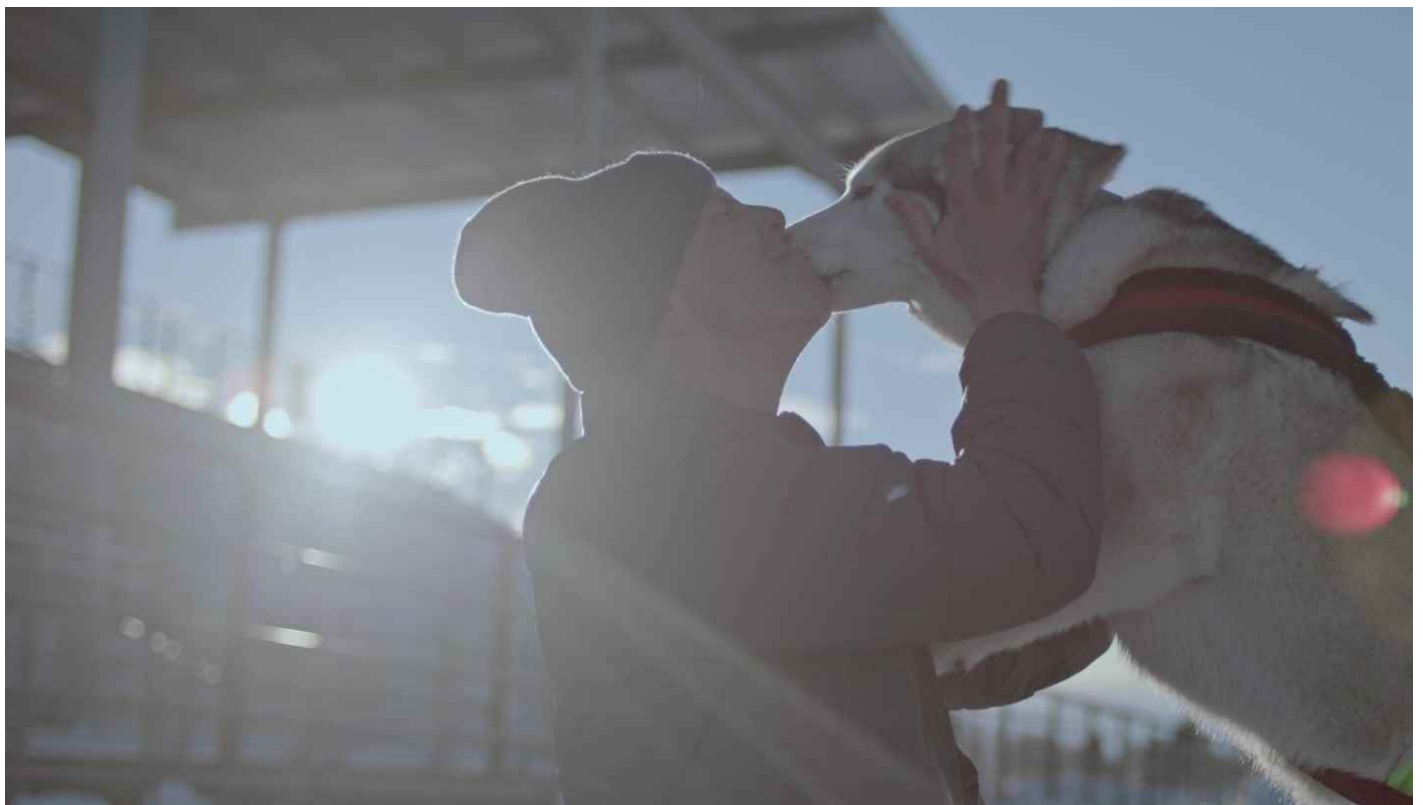

Grabow admits that he had auditioned a few actors for the supporting role that ultimately went to Lumbattis, but none of them were quite right. When he asked Lumbattis to read for the part he knew Lumbattis was a perfect fit. While Lumbattis had never acted before, he was game for the adventure. "The story Rob was telling felt like my story, an alcoholic who finds sobriety through his relationship with his dog and weight pulling. I've struggled with drinking and my dogs are the reason I'm still here," says Lumbattis. "He's a complete natural," Grabow added, "And he's just an authentic human being. He really cares."

Lumbattis' on-screen role might have been small, but that isn't representative of his work behind the scenes. Grabow said. "Honestly, we couldn't have made the movie without Darwin's help." And although Lumbattis admits the movie is not representative of actual dog pulling, he did what he could to help make it appear as real as possible.

Along with Lumbattis and Grabow, The Year of the Dog features a cast of accomplished film and television actors including: Jon Proudstar (veteran of 43 films and television shows) who was short-listed for Emmy consideration for his performance as Leon in Reservation Dogs; Lakota actor Michael Spears (Dances with Wolves, 1887, and Reservation Dogs, Season 2); Broadway actor Aaron Finley (Emmy Award-winning Moulin Rouge, Kinky Boots, and Rock of Ages); reality TV actor Abram Boise, (MTV's Road Rules, South Pacific, and The Challenge); and Jeff Medley (over 20 film and television credits), who is also a retired Navy Officer.

The Year of the Dog (PG-13) is co-directed by Michael Peterson, Andrew McGinn, and Rob Grabow. 8 Favorite Valentine Treats Can Kill Dogs

Adapted by Sheryl Franklin from petinsurance.com

Chocolates Are Harmful to Dogs, Cats

Valentine's Day is known for romantic greeting cards, elaborate floral bouquets and decorated boxes filled with gourmet chocolate treats.

It isn't just a time to recognize our love to a significant other, it's also a celebration of our love for chocolate. Lots of chocolate—the National Retail Federation's Valentine's Day Consumer Spending Survey predicts 48% of American will give candy for Valentine's Day this year.

Recent research has revealed the nation's favorite chocolates. Guess what? Our pets like them, too. Unfortunately, chocolate can be deadly to dogs and cats. You can prevent this from happening by keeping chocolates out of reach.

Top 8 Favorite Chocolates

Research firm SymphonyIRI conducted a survey on the nation's favorite chocolate confections. They narrowed the list to the top ten chocolates:

- M&Ms
- Reeses Peanut Butter Cup
- Snickers
- Hersheys Milk Chocolate Bar
- KitKat
- Twix
- 3 Musketeers
- Hersheys Cookies and Creme
- Milky Way
- Almond Joy

Retail analysts expect Americans to spend more than $20 billion on Valentine's Day in 2023. That means a potential increase in chocolate toxicity in our pets.

Chocolate Toxicity and Pets

Chocolate toxicity is no laughing matter when it comes to our pets. It's a life-threatening condition that can cause pancreatitis, seizures, heart arrhythmias, severe vomiting and death.

Chocolate contains the methylxanthine compounds theobromine and caffeine which can be lethal to dogs and cats. Our pets metabolize methylxanthines differently than we do, which is the leading culprit of toxicity. The fat and sugar in chocolate can cause pancreatitis, which is also life threatening.

The darker the chocolate, the higher the toxicity. Dark chocolate has 130-450 mg of theobromine per ounce as compared to 44-58 mg of theobromine per ounce in milk chocolate.

Chocolate Toxicity Symptoms

Symptoms of chocolate toxicity in pets includes nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, increased urination, cardiac arrhythmias, seizures, and cardiac arrest.

According to Pet Poison Helpline, a 24/7 animal poison control center, dogs are more likely to eat chocolate and make up a majority of their poisoning cases. While cats can't taste sweetness they are still known to occasionally indulge and can also suffer the same symptoms as dogs.

Chocolate toxicity in pets can persist for 72 hours. Veterinary treatment is strongly recommended within the first two hours if you suspect your pet has consumed chocolate. Induced vomiting under your veterinarian's care can help save your pet's life.

Prevent Pet Toxicity

In addition to these eight favorite chocolates, other chocolate brands pose the same poisonous threat to pets.

Make sure your Valentine's Day stays sweet—and safe. Keep any type of chocolate out of reach where dogs and cats can counter surf or graze at nose level. Tuck away chocolates in the microwave or the refrigerator, where pets don't have a chance to access them.
