FROM THE PRESIDENT

George Ferrari

Hello, and welcome to winter. Last week while we were hunting it was in the upper 60 degree range next week our high temps are to only to be in the 40 degree range. Next thing you know we will pulling in the snow!

We had our first wheel pull this weekend in Yakima it was SPOOKTAKULAR. All of the dogs did well for the first pull of the year.

Remember to keep an eye on your points and notify us if there are any problems.

I want to wish all of you a blessed Thanksgiving and do not eat too much pumpkin pie. Hope all are in good health. Remember it is cold outside; keep those pups warm and well fed.

Thanks from Zac's Legacy Foundation

The 16th Annual J&T Country Feeds Benefit Dog Pull was held at The New Plantation in Evans, Colorado on October 21st and 22nd, 2017. Zac's Legacy Foundation, J&T Feeds and Terry and Robbie Reed would like to thank the members of IWPA Region 9 for their participation and donations to this cause.

Zac's Legacy provides financial assistance to families affected by childhood cancer. The funds are used to help with everyday expenses so the families can continue to pay their bills while their child undergoes cancer treatment.

The event was sponsored by The New Plantation, J&T Country Feeds, Awards & Etc, Royal Kennel, 5M Kennel, and Nutrisource Dog Food. Terry and Robbie would also like to thank our cart marshal's Kristian, Zac and Chase Bering (aka Grandson's).

When Terry delivered the check for $650 ($150 more than the past 2 years) he learned the donation jar at the pull produced another $100 for a total of $750 raised during the event.

Thanks again to the Sponsors, Handlers, Cart Marshal's and dogs of Region 9 for making this event such a success!!!

Home Remedies For Fleas

By Sheryl Franklin, adapted from dogsnaturally article

This article is about natural flea remedies, not purchased flea remedies. It's not for everyone, but may be for you.

1. Keeping Fleas Out Of Your Yard

When soil temperatures rise above 45 degrees for at least 2 to 3 weeks (spring, summer and fall in most areas), use nematodes to minimize flea populations. Nematodes are your best friends when it comes to keeping your yard flea-free. If fleas aren't in your yard, they're less likely to find their way onto your dog. What Are Nematodes? Nematodes are tiny wormlike multicellular animals found in the soil. There are a lot of different kinds of nematodes, good and bad. The good ones are beneficial in controlling many garden pests like ants, termites and grubs — but they also eat fleas! They can be found at many garden centers and online. They come ready to use; you just add water as directed on the package. Spray them throughout your yard using a hose sprayer or a watering can. Since nematodes are living organisms, you'll need to use them quickly after they arrive. Apply them in the spring, summer and fall for effective coverage.

Mowing - If you live in a flea prolific area, you need to keep your lawn cut short.

Plants That Guard - Keep pots of lemon balm, sage, rosemary, catnip, lemongrass, basil and mint outside of your main "potty" doors and throughout your yard. These plants help repel fleas through the natural oils that they secrete and deter fleas from entering the house.

Diatomaceous Earth (DE) - Diatomaceous Earth is a non-toxic powder made up of fossilized organisms called diatoms that break apart flea eggs and dry them out before they can grow into adult fleas. You can DE at most holistic dog supply stores, health stores and garden centers. Make sure you're buying food grade DE only. Industrial grade DE is chemically treated and used for pools and manufacturing. Spread food grade diatomaceous earth outside in your yard wherever your dog spends most of her time. Look for places where the earth or grass is worn down from your dog's extensive napping or relaxing schedule. CAUTION: DE can irritate your lungs so wear a mask and make sure your dogs and animals aren't breathing the dust. After the dust has settled, DE is safe.

Garlic - Fleas don't like garlic, so it's a natural flea repellent that's safe to use in the yard and with your pets.

2. Protect Your Home

If carpet is a must, choose berber. Berber is the best choice for carpet when you have dogs because the weave is unfriendly to pests.

If you have carpets, follow these steps.

Steam clean your carpets a least once or twice a year. This can really get you off to a good start in protecting your home from fleas. Fleas love to hide in carpets, especially where the carpet meets the wall.

Vacuum at least once a week in all areas. Immediately empty the vacuum bags or throw out canister debris in an outside garbage container. Once a month during flea season, spread diatomaceous earth all over and vacuum after 48 hours.

Reminder: DE can irritate your lungs so wear a mask when you're applying it and keep your pets out of the room until the dust has settled.

3. Protect Your Dog

These are some ways to prevent fleas on your dog.

Feed Garlic - You can use small amounts of garlic as an internal flea preventative. Now you might be screaming, "No, I'll hurt my dog!" Yes, garlic can be harmful if you use really huge amounts (equivalent to 75 cloves of garlic for a 70 lb dog) but garlic is safe to use if you use freshly chopped organic garlic and feed the right amount. So always use organic fresh whole clove garlic and avoid garlic supplements. You can safely give your pet ¼ clove of garlic per ten pounds (use regular sized garlic, not jumbo). If your pet weighs less than ten pounds, cut a ¼ clove of garlic in half and give ⅛ clove. No matter how big your dog is, I prefer not to give more than two cloves of garlic per day. So if you have a hundred pound dog, still give her only two cloves of garlic. Start feeding garlic one month before the start of flea season and you'll find it's an effective deterrent in your flea prevention tool kit.

Apple Cider Vinegar – Inside And Out - Fleas don't like a dog who's pH balanced. Raw unfiltered apple cider vinegar (ACV) creates a more acidic environment outside and balanced alkalinity on the inside, making it a must-have for flea season success. Feed your dog ½ teaspoon of ACV per day per 25 lbs. ACV contains important nutrients, vitamins, minerals, vital acids and potassium. Tip: Test your dog's urine with pH strips before adding ACV to their food or water. Dogs should have a pH between 6.2 and 6.5.

Essential Oils - Unless you're willing to mix your essential oils with a carrier oil (a vegetable oil used for dilution), don't use them. Many people, blogs and companies advocate water-suspended essential oils for fleas. This practice is dangerous. Water can't safely disperse essential oils because essential oils are NOT water-soluble unless they've been diluted with a solvent. Chemistry is chemistry and anyone who tells you otherwise is misinformed. There are some natural substances that dissolve essential oils, but for do-it-yourself flea and tick sprays, I suggest using a thin carrier oil like grape seed oil or fractionated coconut oil. Mix one drop of essential oil to one milliliter of carrier oil.

Here are a few flea repelling essential oils: • Lavender • Lemon • Palmarosa • Cedar (atlantica) • Eucalyptus (radiata) • Clary sage • Peppermint

Avoid making or purchasing flea repellent that contain essential oils of wintergreen, pennyroyal and clove. These oils are dangerous for your dog and should not be used for any reason.

A note about bandanas or collars infused with essential oils: While this may be a useful idea to protect your dog when she's outdoors, make sure you dilute the essential oils and please take off the bandana after your dog comes inside.

4. Health Is The Best Defense

This last recommendation is probably the most important of all. Fleas are parasites and parasites seek out the weak and unhealthy. This means if your dog is healthy, fleas will be more inclined to leave her alone and jump on your neighbor's dog instead! Good diet is the foundation of good health. The most important way to keep your dog glowing with good health is to feed her a diet full of fresh whole foods and unprocessed proteins. In particular, supply her with plenty of B vitamins (found in most meats, organ meats, oily fish and eggs), probiotics (such as goat kefir or fermented vegetables), sulphur rich foods (eggs, cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower and Brussels sprouts) as well as omega-6 fatty acids (poultry, eggs, flaxseed and hempseed) and omega-3 fatty acids (mackerel, freshly ground hemp and flaxseed).

Steps For Treating Your Dog For Fleas

During an active flea attack, wash your dog with citrus Castile soap each week followed by a final rinse with ACV. For this rinse, use one part vinegar to ten parts water.

Keeping your dog's coat clean and using a flea comb is essential to natural flea prevention. Comb from top of head to the underside of the tail, neck, underbelly and legs.

Once a week, wash all of your dog's bedding in hot water with a natural, unscented detergent. If your dog sleeps with you, make sure you throw your own bedding in the washer once a week too.

Each week vacuum your carpets and floors, paying special attention to any places your dog hangs out (along with his little flea companions). An extra diatomaceous earth carpet treatment or two can also help keep fleas from multiplying.

Because the flea's entire life cycle, from eggs to larvae to pupae to adults, can be as long as several months, you'll need to keep repeating these steps to make sure the flea infestation is completely gone.

Living the All Natural Lifestyle takes a special effort especially when it comes to your sweet pooch. With a bit of planning, you can be well on your way to a successful flea-free season without resorting to toxic chemicals.
