From the President:

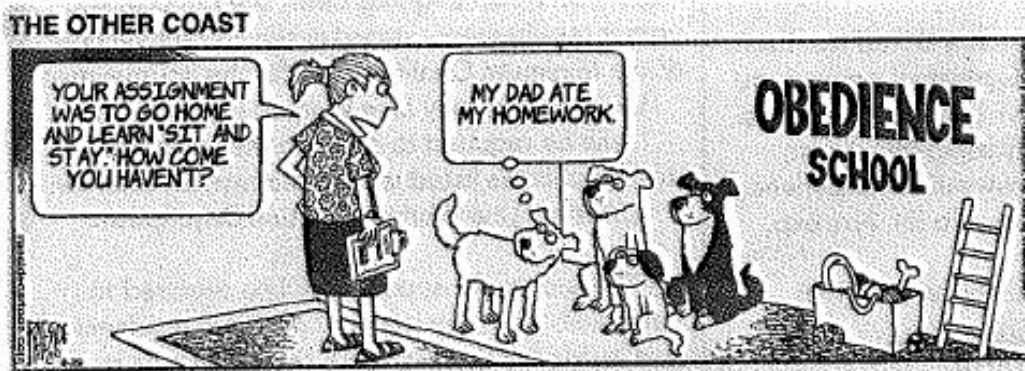

I can't believe that it is fall already. The weather is finally cooling off in the Pacific Northwest.

Speaking of weather, I hope all our pullers in the path of Florence, are fairing well. I pray they and their families are safe.

As we start the holiday season, yes, it is coming up sooner than we all thing. Remember, that chocolate and your dogs, are not a good combination. Be extra careful when all the princesses, ghosts, goblins, and other scary things come to your door on the 31st. Keep everyone safe, including your furry friends.

I would also like to say Congratulations to Region 9, Cheryl Martin and her group, for winning the Championship bid for the 2018-2019 season. Please watch for more information as it comes forward on how we can all help them out and make this event successful.

For those of you with kids in school, be they 2 legged or 4 legged, I had to include this one.

And I'm pretty sure no one else has this issue when they get home, except me. LOL

Happy Halloween!

Sue

FROM THE CHAMPIONSHIP COMMITTEE

Valarie Thawley and George Ferrari

Hello Everyone,

Hope you all had a great summer, and are ready to get started for a new season of weight pulling. We had 2 bids for this year's Championships; 1st bid was from Region 9 and Cheryl Martin, the 2nd bid was from Region 3 and Sean Hammell (Canada). It was a hard decision to make.

So, this year's Championship is going to Region 9, and Cheryl Martin. The Championship will be held in Estes Park, CO.

The Dates of the Championship will be April 27 – 28, 2019.

April 27, 2019 – Snow (Natural). The snow will be trucked in. There will be 2 tracks.

April 28, 2019 – Wheels (Natural surface). There will be 2 tracks.

They will be using a digital scale for weigh in.

Tentatively, the banquet and membership meeting will be held at a new motel/restaurant, which is also pet friendly and is only a few miles from the venue.

There will be bleachers for spectators, and ample room to exercise the dogs. Along with food vendor and bathrooms.

I would like to send a Congrats to Region 9 and Cheryl Martin for putting in the bid for this year's Championship.

There will be more information to come in the next several months, so stay tuned.

Good luck everyone!

Regards,

Valarie Thawley and George Ferrari
Championship Chairs

CBD Oil for Dogs, the Research is Ongoing

By Sheryl Franklin (adapted from several online articles)

There are lots of anecdotal claims of the benefits of CBD Oil for dogs:

1. CBD Is Not Psychoactive
2. CBD Oil Reduces Anxiety
3. CBD Can Fights Cancer
4. CBD Can Treat Seizures And Epilepsy
5. CBD Relieves Pain
6. CBD Can Help With Inflammatory Bowel Disease
7. CBD Reduces Chronic Inflammation and Autoimmune Disease
8. CBD Can Protect The Nervous System And Help With Neurodegenerative Diseases
9. CBD Increases Appetite And Helps With Nausea
10. CBD Promotes Cardiovascular Health

Sounds too good to be true, right? Well, in fact, it may be too good to be true. When one author inspected the resources listed, they found the bulk of the studies were done in vitro. That means, in essence, cannabidiol oil was used on affected cells in a petri dish in a laboratory and the cells used were mice cells, NOT canine or human cells. It is encouraging that CBD oil may work that way, but there is still a long way to go to have it work orally. Some mice were injected with the oil with some good results, but again, it is via injection, not taken orally.

Another article stated that CBD oil was effective via injection for seizures, however in dogs, the liver removed all the good properties (first pass) and the anti-seizure property was lost if used alone. It did seem to help if it was given with other anti-seizure traditional seizure medications.

“To date, no report has appeared that states CBD possesses antiepileptic or anticonvulsant activity in humans or animals upon oral administration when it is the only drug administered.”

Another website lists the potential side effects of CBD and recommends that you let your veterinarian know your dog is using CBD if they show any of the following symptoms:

- Dry Mouth: Your dog can't tell you if they have dry mouth but it's safe to say they might increase their water intake. Additionally, increased thirst could also be a sign of other serious problems, such as antifreeze or rodenticide poisoning, or conditions like diabetes.
- Tremors: Human patients with Parkinson's disease have reported increased tremors at high doses of CBD. Tremors of any kind should be cause for concern in a dog.
- Low Blood Pressure: If your vet notices low blood pressure during your next wellness visit, let them know that you have been giving your dog CBD. Until then, check whether your dog seems overly tired or lethargic.
- Lightheadedness: Your dog won't tell you if they're feeling lightheaded, but they might seem disoriented or dizzy.
- Drowsiness: Pay attention to your dog's sleeping patterns to see if there's any change.

The same website goes on to say this about THC and dogs:

"It's not that vets think marijuana products, either THC or CBD, are a panacea to all health problems for dogs and other animals. Instead, the lack of solid information about these drugs has created an unregulated environment where many pet owners are simply running the experiments themselves, sometimes with dangerous consequences. Dr. Diana Thomé is at least one vet who said she has seen more animals with marijuana (THC) toxicity. "Our clients come in almost daily asking us about the use of marijuana," she explained to congress, "Legally, I can't tell them anything ... other than to say I can't advise them to use it."

Without study, vets can't say whether it's safe to give any amount of THC or CBD to certain dogs, what it might treat effectively, what the suggested dosage might be, or any other information that could help reduce preventable harm. "

If you opt to use CBD oil for your pet, make sure IT IS LESS than .03 percent of tetrahydrocannabinol (THC).

However, this isn't all bad news. While there has been little research done to date on CBD oil (Hemp oil, WITHOUT THC), Colorado State University (CSU) has started specific research just for dogs. They are currently accepting dogs that have at least two seizures a month and dogs with canine arthritis. This is excellent news, and hopefully soon we will know what types of CBD oil will work (or not) for dogs and how much to give them.

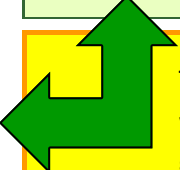

CSU recently finished their trial on osteoarthritis in dogs, and we are awaiting their results.

CSU also has a trial going on for Cannabidiol and Epilepsy.

So what you may read on miracles of CBD is only anecdotal to date. Research has not shown it to be the miracle fix, but more research is being explored. PLEASE do your research before trying CBD oil. If you choose to use it, make sure the oil is pure, organic and contains no or VERY LITTLE THC! Be VERY careful not to overdose!

While the research doesn't support the stories we have heard about the miracle of CBD oil in dogs, I continue to be optimistic that the research being continued will show CBD oil to be helpful in some areas and that maybe they will be able to produce it in a manner that is more specifically helpful to dogs.

Past research with mice and rats does not always transfer over to dogs or even people, so the results of the trials that are specific to dogs should bring us better answers. If you decide to go ahead and use it, please research it very carefully. Make sure the product is free of THC and let your veterinarian know immediately if your dog shows any of the side effects listed above.

The preceding article is for informational purposes only. It is not the opinion of the IWPA. The IWPA would suggest for you to conduct your own background research and talk to your veterinarian before giving your dog any form of substance or supplement. BE INFORMED!!!

The IWPA would also caution you in feeding or dispensing any controlled substance to your dog. The controlled substance may very well be a compound that will test positive on a drug test!!!

As of this writing, Drug testing Chair Robbie Reed has made efforts in contacting the laboratory which has been contracted with the IWPA to conduct drug testing. Unfortunately, those efforts have not been successful.

Updated information will be posted in an upcoming Pulling Power Newsletter.
